Today was the start of quarantine for California. Today also happens to be the release day of Animal Crossing New Horizons, a much anticipated game.

Also on this day the tragic death of Breonna Taylor happened. She was killed in her own home by Louisville Police in Kentucky.

It's 3 days since the lockdown. Paper toilet and cleaning supplies are flying off the shelves. It is still hard to get toilet paper and there's new videos of people fighting over it. While some struggle, one man in Tennessee was hoarding bottles of hand sanitizer and other disinfectants in order to sell them at higher price, he is not the only one has many online websites are seeing resells on things people need. WHICH IS ILLEGAL!!!!

It's been 17 days since the lockdown. All the schools have been trying to figure out what to do, so far it seems like schools are going to be online. My classes start on April. I think classes are going to be easier since school is online, I feel like it would go in a better pace. This is not what I thought the last quarter was going to be like. Also more and more people are getting the virus with New York being the epicenter of it.

School has officially started back on the 7th. I was fortunate to have all my classes be on Thursdays and Tuesdays, thinking it work well with my work schedule when I was still working that is. We had a few errors and technical issues, but it's everyone's first time in this situation.

The state of New York keeps seeing more death's and more cases. Along with other states. There is still no testing for the virus.

I am fortunate to be living with my parents has many people are losing their jobs due to the shutdown. I have not lost my job yet. I was working as a intern at a preschool, and because of the school shutdowns I have no idea when I will go back to work. However, I do feel like I should be helping my parents with the house expenses, but online school is proving to be harder than it seems.

More on unemployment:

Yet another innocent African American was killed. His name was Ahmaud Arbery. The video of his murder was unescapable it was every social media. You can see he was trying to get away but they still shot him. Although, this happened in February, it's disgusting how some people are trying to justify the killers actions. It's getting tiring seeing the innocent killed in the name of protection or suspicion.

Online school sucks.

Today there was another innocent killing of an African American, his name was George Floyd. Understandably people went out to protest against police brutality. The cause of Mr. Floyd's death. Although there is still a pandemic, many across the nation and the world came out and protested. The protesters made sure to wear masks and provided hand sanitizer, while also keeping their distance.

I HATE ONLINE LEARNING!!!! MATH IS SO HARD TO LEARN ONLINE!!!! AS MUCH AS I HATED DRIVING TO SCHOOL I WANT TO GO BACK.

Today was suppose to be my little brother's graduation. I feel bad for him because he missed out on a lot of fun senior activities. I promised him, when this was all over we would take him out to any place he wants. I also feel bad for all the college graduates that also did not get a graduation. I know these are little trivial things but for some especially when you are a first generation college grad. For some this has been their goal since they first started school in kindergarten, it was thanks to all the sacrifices they and their parents made.

June 10, 2020

It's been awhile since the last quarter has ended. It was awful. I ended up failing my math class. I was depending on my homework to save my grade but in the last minute my teacher decide not to count the homework. So I just took that L and cried for an hour. I hope this all over by next year because I CAN NOT DO MATH ONLINE, am simply too stupid.

On Monday of this week, because of the international protest of Black Live Matter, the coast guard showed up in LA. it's weird seeing military people armed and suited in a city like LA. I had to look it what the coast guard do and apparently they protect the citizens of the US. I also want to say some random people dressed in military gear have shown up to protest to do wrong or intimidate.

Today is independence day. However, it doesn't feel right to celebrate. Not when there is still protest for Black Lives Matter and those innocent people who have been murdered. Also were we live we have been hearing fireworks go off since March almost every night am sick of them.

Since some idiots decided to go out to celebrate on July 4th, the cases has gone up. At this rate we will never get out of this quarantine. STAY HOME. WEAR A MASK.

School has started again. Nothing in my life has changed drastically like others might have. Some colleges have opened up again, giving the chance to live on campus with the promise of students to follow social distancing rules. I don't think some will keep their promise. This is my favorite video.

It has strong language

School so far as been going smoothly expect for on class, but I won't go into it. Nothing has changed since August expect more cases since people can't follow basic rules. I can't believe it's already September. Am tired.

October 13, 2020

At this point nothing has really changed expect that New York was able to lower their cases. California is slowly moving up. We are in the second month of fall and the colder season so we might have more cases. I finally got tested for covid came back negative. My dad thought he might have gotten it but it was just a cold. We still quarantine him though.

The Elections are coming the race is between Former Vice President Joe Biden and President Trump. It is going to be a big event. This is truly the most important decisions we has American will make this year. Everyone is doing their part and informing the people to go out and vote by mail or to register to vote. This is evidence that people want change.
